Reflect

Over the course of several chapters, Joshua allocates the Promised Land to the different tribes of Israel. "...So the Lord gave all the land he'd sworn to give to their ancestors... ...Not one of his good promises to Israel failed; every one was fulfilled." How does it make you feel to read such an example of God fulfilling his promises? Do you believe God has promises yet to fulfill in your life?

Pastor Adam highlights three things we can learn from Joshua's final words to the people of Israel:

1. Receive what God has already given you.
  - a. Where are you using the word "can't" and God is using "can"?
    - i. Fill in the blank: God can't _____ someone like me. Now, replace it with "can" and read it aloud.
  - b. What promises from Scripture stand out as reminders that God has land for you to take?
  - c. If the plan isn't easy, does that make you doubt you are on the right track? Discuss.
2. Remove any walls that remain.
  - a. What wall in your life needs taken down?
    - i. What is preventing you from bringing it down? Fear? Doubt? Discouragement? Complacency? Disobedience? Feelings of inadequacy? Other?
    - ii. In what ways have you stopped short of what God has in store? How might you be settling for where you are right now?
    - iii. Are you trying to pull down the wall on your own? Who could help you?
    - iv. Do you know someone struggling with a wall like that of Jericho? How can you help?
3. Resolve your identity before your identity is questioned.
  - a. How would you define yourself?
  - b. How would you want to be defined?
  - c. What areas of your life do you still need to surrender to God?

Would you say that you are immovable in your faith?
