Reflect

This weekend, a panel of pastors and their wives answered your questions about relationships and marriage. In your small group this week, spend some time reflecting and discussing: were there any questions you want to explore further? Are there any questions that were not addressed? Try spending most of your time this week reflecting on these questions.

Make sure to remind everyone of these three vital truths:

1. God loves you desperately!
 - a. This should be our starting point whenever we feel uncertain or have questions. Does this truth provide you with a foundation for understanding your identity in Christ? How might this perspective change the way you see yourself and your relationships?
2. Blessing follows obedience – when we fail, it's because we didn't follow God's original model
 - a. How have you seen God transform your relationships when you are obedient? What are some consequences of disobedience that you have experienced?
3. There is grace for when we mess up
 - a. No matter what our mistakes are or what our past looks like, God always has more than enough grace for us. Are you trying to fix or escape your past? What would it look like if you let God's grace overwhelm your past?

What was your biggest take-away from the weekend message?
