Luke 10:28–37, Micah 6:8

Reflect

In this season, God has allowed us time to pause and pay attention. He gave us time to have conversations, and discern what our role is as a church and as Christians. One of the conversations we need to be having today is how we can act justly, love mercy, and walk humbly. When we do these things, we can respond to others using our hearts.

Pastor Scott Williams uses the parable of The Good Samaritan to help us understand what it means to love the Lord with all your heart, soul, and strength, and to love your neighbor as yourself.

Lord Have Mercy On My Heart

- a. What circumstances are keeping your heart from changing?
- b. Studies have shown that the brain receives its instructions from the heart. The heart can think, feel and have emotions on its own. How can you change your prayer life to allow God to change your heart?

Lord Have Mercy On My Hands

- a. What does it mean to love God with all your strength?
- b. What are you holding in your hands that you need to let go of so you can respond to God's call on your life?

Lord Have Mercy On My Head

- a. Proverbs 23:7 says for "what a man thinks in his heart, so is he." What thoughts do you need to take captive, so you can live the abundant life God has planned for you?

Lord Have Mercy On My Neighbor

- a. Who is our neighbor?
- b. Why is it important to love yourself before you can truly love your neighbor?
- c. Describe a situation where you had a choice to stop and help, or pass by on the other side of someone's struggle. Were you surprised at the amount of sacrifice it would take to help them?

Respond: Where is God leading you? How can your small group support you?
